It combines the powerful image processing abilities of Photoshop with a number of other modules to merge or separate multiple photos. You can view Pixtrio on the desktop version of Photoshop, which is free and with no copy restrictions. Pixtrio can also be viewed on the iPhone and iPad using the Pixtrio iPad app. This is a subscription tool and has no copy restrictions. However, the app doesn't have many features because it's a simplified version of the desktop version. The desktop version also works in portrait orientation only. You'll see that the tool is pretty similar to Photoshop in appearance and interface. The desktop version is available in English and German and the iPad app is available in English. The online help covers both. To use Pixtrio, follow these steps: 1. **Open any of the component tool tabs (Collage, Analysis, Shapes, Text, Transitions, Image Effects, Layers, Adjustments, and Adjustments).** Use the Collage tool to arrange the photos into an image. The other tools enable you to perform various other functions on the photos, such as crop, rotate, and resize them. 2. **Choose Edit** ⇒ **Pixtrio** ⇒ **Collage.** The first time you use Pixtrio, it asks you to install it. If you're using the desktop version, you're prompted for your Adobe ID. If you're using the app, Pixtrio prompts you to sign up. 3. **Drag the photos to the screen.** Pixtrio automatically arranges them as a collage. 4. **Start the editing process by choosing Edit** ⇒ **Pixtrio** ⇒ **Collage.**

Q: PhoneGap Start Page with a library I am trying to set up a PhoneGap application that will be starting with a library. My app will be in landscape mode only. This is what I have so far in config.xml. My problem is that the default PhoneGap starting page is shown in portrait mode. And the phone I am testing this on is in landscape. I don't want to remove the portrait mode because the application needs to be portrait in all cases. So what do I do? Thanks. A: Try setting the orientation like this: or phonegap-2.1.0-jquery.0.2.1/pre/build.js [www/demos/orientation.html]: function createLandscapePage() { var page = document.getElementById("page"); if (window.orientation === 90 || window.orientation === -90) { page.setAttribute("class", "landscape"); } else { page.setAttribute("class", "portrait"); } } phonegap-2.1.0-jquery.0.2.1/phonegap.js [ // Pick the orientation that matches your phone var orientation = navigator.userAgent.match(/iPhoneliPod/i)? "landscape" : "portrait"; // Make sure to set this as the first preference, // or the bgColor/orient

What's New In Adobe Photoshop?

Q: Return a flatlist from each item in an object I have an object that stores some mails that I want to display as a flatlist. The emails look like that: const mails = [ { mailType: 'box', address: 'a@aa.com' }, { mailType: 'web', address: 'b@bb.com' }, { mailType: 'app', address: 'c@cc.com' }, { mailType: 'web', address: 'd@dd.com' } ] Instead of returning this as a flatlist, I'd like to return it as a list of each item. So it would look like that: box: a@aa.com web: b@bb.com app: c@cc.com web: d@dd.com The usual way to achieve this is to use Map but I don't know how to handle the nested structure in a map. A: You could use a recursive function with Array#map with an anonymous function that will check the value of the key and if the value is an array split the array. I've updated the code in comments so you can understand it better. const mails = [ { mailType: 'box', address: 'a@aa.com' }, { mailType: 'web', address: 'b@bb.com' }, { mailType: 'app', address: 'c@cc.com' }, { mailType: 'web', address: 'd@dd.com' } ]; const result = mails.map( (mail, key) => key === 'mailType'? [mail.mailType,...mail.address.split('@')] : [mail.address] ); console.log(result); Q: Embedded library behavior in a C++.DLL that was created using the C# compiler I have a C# library that is dependent on a third party C++ library that also uses that same C# library. The C++ library was compiled using the C# compiler. The question is, what are the library dependency paths when a C++ application (VS 2010) is built and attempts to use both the C
