Questions are a series of bits of trivia put together for your entertainment. They are not intended to be scientifically accurate or to be included in an academic paper. They are meant to make your day a little better, so they will likely be entertaining. Many people are concerned about spending money on the side of the road in a vehicle with company logos for Trump, Mitt Romney, Barack Obama, Paul Ryan, Marco Rubio and Rick Santorum. But when I was younger, I would look for people wearing stickers for some obscure third party like the Peace and Freedom or the Constitution Party. I didn't ask the drivers who they were supporting, and I had no idea who was endorsing them. If you are worried about Donald Trump or Mitt Romney winning the presidential election, why not get out your cell phone and take a picture of a Trump or Romney sticker and send it in? Or just submit the picture as a comment below. Make sure that you include your name and email address in the picture of the sticker. This sticker will be included in the October issue of Rod and Rantz: Part Two. Thanks to Josh Pinner of Plant City, Florida, for submitting the image. and Bhawan Singh (Lakkaddupalli). In addition to this, China having annexed Tibet as a province and Bhutan having quit the then Assam state is a strong reason behind the passage of the bill. Alongside, and contrary to what the parliament is led to believe, the main cause of vulnerability to insurgents is also lack of a social fabric rather than lack of troops. The state machinery and police also ignores the need for social development. The policy of indiscriminate extra-judicial killing of insurgents has fuelled the insurgency. What can be done? The Indian state appears convinced that a political solution is the way forward. The Indian Army has taken charge of the security situation. No doubt, it is doing a commendable job, but the need for a proper long-term strategy has yet to be articulated. Besides training the tribal people, the Indian armed forces are also involved in search and patrol missions. This is a burden on the already dwindling resources of the armed forces. While military forces patrol, the real solution lies in development, which should be considered at policy level. The number of insurgents along the international border
