Many enterprises are changing from analog data systems to digital data systems. For example, many enterprises are now using data systems that are based on the Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) standard, such as the EDIFACT standard. Many parties connect to such data systems, the enterprise may have to modify the hand-held terminals of all the subscribers who wish to access the data system. In other words, any change to a data system may be a problem in that the subscribers who use hand-held terminals in order to access the data system. The effect of copper and chromium salts and the bio-stimulation system on the growth of pikeperchSander lucioperca. Investigations were made on the effect of copper and chromium salts and bio-stimulation system on the growth of the fish pikeperch. The results showed that the concentrations of copper or chromium salts were necessary to keep a concentration of 20µg/l, respectively. The five groups were fed with diets containing 0, 0.5, 5, 50 and 500μg/g copper for 10, 15 and 20 days. The weight gain and the condition factor of fish were not affected by the treatments. Copper at a concentration of 500μg/g was toxic and caused decreased growth. Another experiment was conducted to determine the effect of bio-stimulation system in combination with copper and chromium salts at the doses of 0, 0.5, 5, 10 and 100µg/g on the growth of the pikeperch. The bio-stimulation system was wery effective in producing increased weight gain and condition factor of fish. At a concentration of 100µg/g and 15 days, the combination of copper and the bio-stimulation system was more effective 82138339de
