The City is one of the "Square Mile" and the financial capital of England, housing a number of banks, hedge funds, insurance companies, accounting firms and law firms. The City of London has been one of the major centers of finance for more than a thousand years. In 1960 the Bank of England moved to new premises in the heart of the City and the centuries-old parish church of St. Mary Axe was destroyed to build the Bank of England Museum. The City of London is governed as a "Borough" and has a tradition of self-government. The Sovereign as represented by the Lord Mayor, the City's mayor, is the most senior executive officer, but the Corporation's aldermen have much of the real authority. The mayor's duties include representing the City on the London Assembly, and chairing the London Symphony Orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art. The Lord Mayor is elected every year and replaced after three years in office. The City of London is home to the stock exchanges of the world: the London Stock Exchange, the National Stock Exchange of India, the Bombay Stock Exchange, the Shanghai Stock Exchange, the Dalian Commodity Exchange, the Shenzhen Stock Exchange, the Hang Seng Index, the Tokyo Stock Exchange, the Singapore Exchange, the Korea Exchange, the Canadian National Stock Exchange, the New York Stock Exchange, and the German, Chinese, Hong Kong, Australian, South African, Indian and Indonesian stock exchanges. The "London" name is applied to multiple areas in the City, including the Wallbrook estate, former municipal borough in Hammersmith and Fulham, and much of the retail district centred on the Barbican Centre and St. Paul's Cathedral. Change LogØsterhavshoved Kanal Østerhavshoved Kanal is a canal in the Danish city of Aarhus. It is located in the north of the city, between the road and the Aarhus Bay. The canal was laid out in the mid-nineteenth century and was the first of a number of such canals to be built in Copenhagen and Aarhus. It was built as part of the construction of Aarhus Bay, which was meant to separate the city of Aarhus from the heavily populated suburbs of Frederiksberg and Østerbro. Today the canal is used for leisure activities, but is also the longest in Aarhus and is a popular location for both walking and cycling.
