Download.rar/zip file. Tuesday, November 25, 2010 Started today (Nov. 25) on the royal portraits for today's favorite Indian statuettes - I've got both of them finished. These are the best I can do, no offense. Here's the third one (left), an Equestrian (seat) portrait, with the prince on horseback (pictured next). The Equestrian is the one that took the longest, so I thought it best to make it the first one done. I'm getting closer to a finish of these. I've actually had the other two completed as I was working on the Equestrian, but I'm not at all satisfied with them. The third one is very disappointing, kind of stilted. The other one (below) is the finest of the three, I think. But, I'm not happy with the lighting - as you can see there is a sharp, dark shadow in the chest area on the Prince's face. So, I'll go back and lighten this up a bit in the next couple of days. One thing about a photo collage - it all comes together with the special lighting you use and your artistic eye. I'm going to try and not do one of these again for a while (until I get some feedback), just to see how these portraits develop in the studio. But, you get the idea. The amazing thing is that I'm not sure when I'll be able to put these together in the final way. I have a lot of things going on right now - and I'm not sure when I'll get to it. I'm finishing up on the home body of this series of statuettes, which I'm not going to name, until closer to Christmas. I've also started on a larger-than-life Prince of Wales portrait for the TV show, How the Prince Got His Groove Back - or How

They Got the Prince Back...if you want to get it right). I 3da54e8ca3
