BARCELONA (Reuters) - A massive explosion ripped through a bar in the Catalan region of Spain on Thursday, killing at least 14 people, setting fire to buildings and sending debris flying as frightened onlookers looked on. The blast occurred at around 10.45 a.m. local time on Thursday morning at El Junquito, a bar in the industrial town of Vilanova i la Geltrada. The government office in the area is located just meters away from the explosion site. The town's mayor Jose Angel Sanchez told EFE that 13 bodies have been recovered so far. Local media reported that two others had been hospitalised with serious injuries. The cause of the blast is not yet known, but a spokesman for the local police told EFE that it was linked to explosives. Catalan Interior Minister Miquel Buch told reporters in Barcelona that "the official version of the (Catalan) regional government," that the blast was an
