Full backup: A full backup is a copy of the collection's files. It copies everything including the photos, videos and their orders. It's a perfect backup solution for backing up a photo collection in case of a permanent loss of the collection's files. Incremental backup: An incremental backup is a copy of files that have been changed since the last full backup. The Incremental backup is only a small part of the full backup, but it's small enough to be easier to manage. Only images that have been changed since the last full backup are included in the Incremental backup. Metadata backup: A metadata backup is a copy of an image's metadata. The Metadata backup is used to back up metadata like captions or "Author: xxx Title: xxx" information. (Bugs Fixed In This Version): * An error dialog appeared when the folder already contained images. * A blank error dialog appeared when a folder could not be backed up and no directories were selected. * A wrong "Error" dialog appeared when a directory could not be backed up. * A wrong image was being copied when one parent directory was in a different drive than the other parent directory. * An uncompressed JPG image could not be recognized. * A help system was missing. * The Application window could have been opened fullscreen. * The Application opened two backup threads when "Repeat" was selected. * The scrollbars in the progress bar in the main window were not redrawn when the progress was changed. * Files from a particular folder were not visible in the "File" box in the main window. * The text "Compression mode" in the "Save options" window was not readable. * The filter button was missing in the "File" box in the main window. * The filter button was missing in the "Open file" box in the main window. * The filter button was missing in the search box in the file-open window. * The filters were hidden when the "Hide filters" option was checked. * The scroll bars in the file-open window was not redrawn when the window size changed. * Some images could not be copied because they were not selected. * Images with the same file name but different extensions could not be treated as different files. * Images with the same extension but different file names could not be treated as different files. * A folder could not be backed up without the 09e8f5149f
