And somehow, he's managed to mix all of that together in this tweet, no matter how weird it looks. Here's his message to the entire world: Jesus is awesome. — Kenan Thompson (@iamkenan) June 11, 2014 Look. As weird as this tweet is on the surface, here's something that you need to remember about Kenan Thompson: He's not just an actor and singer, he's also a comedian. And as many comedians have, he's an equal opportunity comedian: He just happens to make jokes about religion. But he's just making fun of his own faith, which is why the tweet is funny, despite the fact that "Jesus is awesome" sounds like it came from the mouth of a 12-year-old child. But even that, in some odd way, may be a testament to Kenan Thompson's social media savvy. This tweet doesn't seem like an entirely new (or unusual) subject. It's just the latest in a series of tweets in which the comedian attempts to convert people

Among the episodes nominated by the Television Critics Association for their annual Press Tour are two in which the Fantastic Four have a starring role - the one-time-only animated short, "The Thing's Thing", and "Here Comes Tomorrow."

"Here Comes Tomorrow" is a story in which Johnny Storm finds himself alone on a strange world, where he soon encounters a strange and deadly threat to the fabric of reality itself. The short is directed by Josh Trank and features cameo appearances by stars of the film Johnny Storm. "The Thing's Thing" is a never-before-seen animated short that takes place during the first meeting of the Fantastic Four. The short was created by Darwyn Cooke, who was also nominated by the Television Critics Association for its outstanding achievement in animation. Cooke won the Emmy for Outstanding Directing for an Animated Program in 2011 for the previous incarnation of the Fantastic Four short - "Fantastic Voyage". "The Thing's Thing" and "Here Comes Tomorrow" will be screened during the TCAs on Sunday, May 24, at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills. Showtimes and information are still being finalized, but the two episodes will run in a special show at 12:30 p.m. and 1:15 p.m. on Sunday. Fans can see them at www.tca.com.
