The world of Elden Ring is a world in which you must master the balance between greed and hatred. In a time where magic has lost its power, the Pact is gradually fading and the number of those who can wield magic is decreasing. Under these circumstances, players must explore the Lands Between in order to provide people with the sake of magic in their lives. WHAT'S NEW: 1) Each character's soul was not clearly described before. We have added the appearance system to further develop the character concept. 2) The Watering Hole combat system was considered to be troublesome. If you are in the Watering Hole and receive damage from an opponent's attack, you cannot use defensive skills. We have included a new system that allows you to evade such attacks and recover your energy. 3) Class types were changed so that you will enjoy the class skills. 4) When you perform a heavy attack that can combo, your character can reduce the combo time when the cooldown is expended. 5) Whether or not you can get experience and items even when you are performing combat is now determined in the map. 6) Convenient interface when you use items. You can change the effects of items by pressing the menu button. 7) The order of event progression is now determined by character level. 8) The level-up conditions will now be displayed. 9) You can now trigger the items that can be used in the combat and the skills that can be used in attacks and spells. 10) The inventory system was improved. 11) You can now adjust the way you change the map. 12) We have added a button to display the map that you can drag your cursor to change the map. 13) The play area of the character that you have selected in the character menu can now be confirmed through the mouse. 14) You can now move the character the other characters are controlling on the map by pressing the shortcut button that appears when you select the character. 15) When you select the character you want to move to another area, the area name is now displayed. 16) During conversation with NPCs, you can now use gestures instead of simply pushing a button. 17) You can now use skills that are only available when you are on the field. 18) You can now set the start limit of the tanking stance to 1 second. 19) We have added a new environment, the "Chaos Tower of Demon's Creek."

pStat (pStat) is a talent used to check the range and damage of a special attack. When it is used after an absorption, a 20% increase is added to the amount of damage absorbed. However, 10% of the damage absorbed is consumed within the talent itself. [New] NOTE: Please select the "Show 4U

If you did not type in the name of the item, tap once again to the item name and so on, it will be active.

↓ "Any word font" is similar to "Improved", but it is a skill that improves/spends the stats of a job. You have to know the actual name of the expected skill to use it, you can check the skill expected by typing its name into the left tab.

"P*Stat" is similar to "Improved", however, you can improve the Enhanced ST/Actual ST/Actual SP/PP/ST Ratio of the job stat by 200% or more after a set period, unlike "P*Stat". The new stats do not include the "Superior" type skill that improved the stats 50%. As stated previously, the new stats always include the current jobs stats. For example, even if the current stats of a skill are the highest at the time, you can expect the skill to be a "P*Stat" skill with the same name. In addition, these new stat-boosting skills do not Play the game Enjoy the game!The effect of arginine side chain ionization on the reactivity of oxocarbenium ions. A global minimum energy structure of the two initial states of an oxocarbenium ion (1,3-dipolar-type electrophile) has been determined. The conformational properties of the ammonium [cyclic iminoiminium (I)], ammonium [4-ammonium cyclic iminium (II)], and quaternary ammonium [2-ammonium iminium (III)] conformations were analyzed and their relative energies determined. In particular, the ¹H-NMR chemical shifts of these conformations were determined. For the case of imine formation, tautomerization at the alpha-carbon occurs, forming a low energy chair-type conformation of the imine. Comparison with the classical Grimme study of carbene formation reveals that the local conformation of the oxygen atom of the tetrahedral intermediate in the latter case is very close to that of the imine. For the formation of an imine from an ammonium oxocarbenium ion a conformation of the intermediate iminium ion is preferred, which corresponds to a planar (nonchair-type) iminium. For the quaternary ammonium oxocarbenium ion, we show that the quaternary ammonium-aminium tautomeric forms of the intermediate are not local energy minima. It is shown that the ammonium N-H bond of the quaternary ammonium (III) oxocarbenium ion is, indeed, broken in the transition state. ain has become the first European nation to remove mercury from thermometers in an effort to combat seasonal health impacts. Health officials announced the ban, which will take effect on July 1, in early April. The move comes after the World Health Organization forecast a jump in mercury exposure resulting from higher temperatures this summer. The agency said mercury is commonly used in industry and the majority of the mercury in thermometers is used to make other products such as fluorescent lights and batteries. The decision will affect hospital and GP research thermometers, which are already widely mercury-free. Mercury is an element that, while in a healthy person, the body safely absorb at low levels. Exposure to high levels has been linked to impairments to neurological and emotional development in children, significant impairment to hearing in adults, and to the formation of cancerous tumors. The levels of exposure to mercury used in medical thermometers -- as high as 10 grams -- is already far above the limit in new federal standards for exposure to the toxin set out in a 2014 report from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. But the WHO's researcher Esther Friedrich said the current standards for mercury are not an adequate measure of health impacts. "There is strong evidence that this limit is too high, so the new international recommendations should be followed," Friedrich said. The World Health Organization forecast higher mercury exposure during the summer in Europe, because of the change to higher mercury levels in thermometers and the fact that mercury accumulates in the body in warmer environments. Irk Tarhan, a health minister in Turkey, said the announcement of the ban was a "milestone for public health" for the nation. The mercury in thermometers starts to build up when it is warm and during the summer months it accumulates and can
