It is an easy-to-use PDF joiner that enables you to join many PDF documents in one single PDF file quickly with fewer steps than other tools that require advanced skills. It is designed to merge all PDF documents in a single PDF. It is possible to extract the content of a PDF document without form filling, change or encrypting the output document. All this with minimum manual actions, avoiding to modify original PDF files. Besides, it is a powerful tool for security and enables you to put a password to your output document. It also lets you disable extractions, print, copying and annotations, and form filling. Q: How to get the string type from a JSON object I have a JSON object, which represents a string value. I would like to get the type of the JSON object from the returned JSON string. e.g. { "sas": "test", } I would like to get the variable "sas" as a "string" to which the value "test" is stored. A: It is not clear what you mean by "JSON object", but you should consider the following: if you are receiving a JSON string, then JSON.parse should get what you want from it. if you are receiving a plain object in JavaScript, then you should consider the description of the relevant description of getPropertyDescriptors method. A: This is probably what you're looking for... var sas = "test"; var keys = Object.keys(sas); alert("The JSON string contains " + keys.length + " keys."); alert("Some keys: "); for (var i = 0; i < keys.length; i++) console.log(keys[i]); Win a signed copy of Maya Ecklund's "Criminal" T-Shirt Designs!
