The Camera view is slightly fixed with no characters moving and no camera shaking around. The timing allows for swift battles. The final battle is a combination of real time battle and turn-based battle. The player can control the movement of their units, however their actions are dictated by the turn-based feature, that the player must respond to quickly. Inventory and Skills: The player can customize their characters with items found in the game. It is possible to equip two, three, or even more items. Most items cannot be stored on the character, but can be carried around in the world. Skills and item development are done in the menu screen. The party can use different items during the game. "Hints" indicate possible items. It is possible to research and develop different skills, such as spying, photography, running, healing, mental, and physical skills. Units and Stamina: The player can choose from six characters, each with their own unique fighting style. Some characters are unique, especially in the fact that they can be trained into "specialists" of either mental or physical training. All characters have a stamina meter that depletes when fighting. The player can rest, heal, attack, or move their units in a battle to conserve their stamina. World and Encounter Map: The game has a top down view of a map. There are multiple world maps and maps with encounters. Each map has different enemies, items, and resources. By finding the entrance to the next map, the player can meet new characters, learn more about the story, and meet the "boss" in each map. Events and Dialogue: There are several events and choice that come up during the game. These events are player driven and affect the plot. Not only do the player's actions affect the plot, but the enemy's actions are also interconnected with the main plot. After each encounter, the screen plays a dialogue scene. During dialogue scenes, the player can decide how the characters react. Each dialogue has options that can lead to a different outcome or a consequence for what you've done during the battle. Turn Based and Real Time: It is possible to choose which mode you wish to play. Real Time mode is similar to a normal battle without a turn-based feature. Once the battle begins, the battle plays out in real time. No time is passed between stages. For a turn-based game, the player must choose which units to move and how the units will move. Units

Arm Wrestling Reborn (A.W.R.) is a competitive arm wrestling game created by independent group FaceUnity Studios, which went bankrupt in the process. The game was released in the summer of 2012 on the Microsoft Windows platform. A planned 2012 release for the PlayStation 3 was cancelled. Gameplay Arm Wrestling Reborn is an arm wrestling game with many objective based multiplayer game modes. It has two modes of play; exhibition and fighting. Exhibition mode has two 'rounds'. In the first round the player randomly picks one of their ten characters. The second round is composed of a group of ten of the player's opponents; ranging from two to eight. The first player to reach five wins or places first. Fighting mode, which features a special win condition exclusive to it is also composed of two rounds with a more difficult set of opponents. In the first round the group of opponents consist of two players from the group of regular exhibition game mode characters. This encounter creates a repetitive and potentially unbalanced experience in the first round as the player who regularly is winning could possibly be losing against a slightly different opponent in the second round. The character roster consists of ten characters that are controlled by button combinations that were mapped in advanced. There are two secondary objectives in the playing modes, the standard win in the first round, and a number of obstacles such as "Throwing elbows", and "Trying to get out of reach". There is a reserved win in the exhibition matches where the player can time their strike to disable the opposing player's wind arm to win. Finishing obstacles or using the right visual cues such as a time freeze, helps win the match. The players and opponents are selected from a character pool that consists of up to fifteen different very different looking arm wrestlers, ranging from tough street gang characters to a scruffy homeless character. Gameplay The game is composed of two types of objective based tournament modes; exhibition mode that is based on a first to eight wins strategy and fighting mode, which is closely related to the arcade game Mortal Kombat. Exhibition mode focuses on winning games and defeating opponents using an arsenal of special moves that can be performed by taping the two buttons on the side of the controllers corresponding to the menu, weapon, and jumping button. In fighting mode there are two modes in which the player can win, the stand up match, and the KO match. These matches have the purpose to become the last standing match between a selected group of opposing players
