RPG Maker MV - Skyforge Battlepack: ★ Contain spoilers for the Skyforge game! ↓ Follow us on: Twitter: Facebook: Email: TylerWadePodcast@gmail.com Additional Music: Fanisization - Fractal Wave Radio Created and played on Guitar Hero:... RPG Maker MV - Skyforge Battlepack | Do's & Dont's! | Tyler Wade This is a short video of the things to avoid, with most of this information being general do's & dont's in GMing a rpg with RPG Maker MV. (Special Thanks for Stephen Schmidt and Do's and Dont's) ♦ Do's ♦ 1) Actively answer questions - Let people know you are doing something is better than saying, "I'll make sure to look into that." If you make something up, you are not being actively helpful to the role-players, and you are forcing them to DM when they don't want to. They are giving you their time and your effort, you can at least be upfront, or keep a sticky note on your laptop for advice, "I don't have any answers but I'll keep this on file." That way, when they do need help, you can direct them to it and both of you can go play something else. 2) Actively answer questions - You are not obligated to have perfect answers, but if you say "I don't know" when the person is asking a question, then either do your research to find an answer or ask a friend who does know. Everyone is different, not everyone has a genius level mind, so it's okay to have a bad answer once in a while. 3) Avoid being a jerk - This is by far the most important. I'm not going to lie, the internet makes us all jerks sometimes. It's extremely easy to be a jerk when you are on the internet, but don't get so comfortable that you lose your soul. The same goes for GM's. You want to make sure you are friendly, helpful, and helpful without being condescending, or treating them like a child. 4) Don't think of them as children - They're mature adults, so act like one. Don't get

Note: I would be very grateful if you don't do it because I'm a freelance illustrator and I need to keep on living.Thinking is Productive "There is no past, no future, there is only the minute we are given." – Pablo Picasso There is much to be gained from observing our thoughts and how they influence our actions. When we are able to recognize our thoughts, our brains are able to strengthen and redirect the wiring of those neurons through the power of thought. You can improve your thought processes and performance by following a few of these tips. Make a habit of taking a few deep breaths every time you want to think on something new or review information you want to have in your brain. Use your hands or other objects to interrupt repetitive thoughts, e.g., tapping your thumb on a table while thinking, or gently tapping your finger against your cheek. List your concerns at the moment, then review them later
