Theatre of War 2: Kursk 1943 is a computer game in the genre of combat strategy, the history of World War II game. T.A.W. 2 is inspired by the module «German Commander» of the series "Theatre of War", but it is developed on a completely new platform. On this basis it has been possible to completely improve the gameplay, graphical and sound aspects, expanding the amount of actual historical content. Theatre of War 2: Kursk 1943 is a game that allows you to develop and execute tactical operations directly under the guidance of a division or army commander. All of the units are modeled as a unique individual, so it is possible to be in command of the battle group, which consists of dozens of infantry squads, tanks or artillery batteries, along with all the necessary logistical support. The system of level of movement allows the precise representation of the actual movement of the units. The road system of the game allows a fast and accurate simulation of the movement of the units. The map of the game is also in 3D, and with the aid of detailed 3D maps it is possible to represent all the changes and situations of the battle in a truly realistic way. For the user interface in the game, a completely new approach was chosen. With the aid of one of the most advanced tactical interfaces it is possible to, in a few mouse clicks, quickly plan and execute battle actions. The programme includes various game mechanisms for the development of the game play, and also allows a rapid development of the missions. Election: All offices are in place It only took one day of campaigning to win the student union election with some promising results. NIKIAKUL CHAOTMAITLIN and GUREEKSWORLENEOL of the student body executive board received most votes and were only 12 and 100 votes out of a total of 24288 votes cast. ANAERI RAMADHUKAI and GU NICHOLAY NGUEN were the candidates most in the field. They were 38 and 43 votes out of a total of 35122 votes cast. This is the updated picture from yesterday 8.5pm. Should the bets placed going on Facebook be called? I'll let the voters decide ? Four members of Ramakrishna Mandiram had their accounts suspended by their users. In one case, the user posted the caste information about one of them. The post was again deleted. Another user posted messages through the Campus-Hindu Facebook group in which they insulted him. One way of doing that is to play with the comments section and past it to the public eye. The user posted: "We are not trash to take a backward." The dialogue repeatedly followed the caste of the user. A very very small portion of people who are involved in caste based discrimination often do see our security guards as "trash". Now, it is inappropriate to use caste in a race to be elected in a secular city by people ranging from people of all faiths, and these Four members deliberately chose to take part in this. But it is totally permissible for members of a community to be insulted in print on a public forum. Thus, it remains appropriate for the Facebook group to ban these particular four. Most of the users who have been suspended and the ones who have been banned can be traced back to India. According to information which CVN has accessed. The commenters have used ethnic slurs. They have also uploaded pictures of the way most of these members look. These people made racist comments that were clearly caste based, insinuating that the four members are not Hindu and belong to the worst caste. Apart from being hate speech, this can be a criminal offence. As feminists, we often take for granted the idea of us being able to argue against inequality with men. Post-Ramadan, being Muslim women, we challenged sexist practices and stereotypes among fellow women. We weren't engaged in any heavy show of strength
