Dead Some Day is an action-packed survival RPG where your focus is to stay alive in a world filled with zombies. You can choose one of the multiple factions, be it the police, army, bandits or regular survivors, and you need to stay alive while zombies and other factions are ready to attack you. Explore the world to find items and craft stuff that will keep you one step in front of your enemies. Find shortcuts and access to higher levels In Dead Some Day, you will need to explore the world, find items and craft stuff that will keep you one step in front of your enemies. Exploration is required, since you can find incredible loot, but at the same time it's risky. You never really know who you might encounter, but risks might bring in great reward. You can explore this challenging game world with the use of vehicles. In Dead Some Day you have access to a garage system where you can easily buy or sell cars, but also modify them the way you want. The customization system is deep and it ranges from suspension to engine, wheels and so on. This way you will have no problem showing off your skills and incredible vehicles while trying to explore the world! Free roam the map with just two actions: Lock on Locate Dungeon System: Each mission you will have to reach a certain place. Once you reach the exit you will have the option to enter the dungeons of Dead Some Day. What you will find in the dungeons is actually unknown, but you can expect intense fights, puzzles, puzzles, puzzles and more puzzles, of course. If you complete the main quest you will be rewarded with items and levels. Hacking: The world in Dead Some Day is constantly updated and you will always find new things to explore. To update your progress you can use your hacking skills to unlock new parts of the world and access new areas. The creators of the game constantly update the world. As a result the items available, the paths and locations will always be different. In Dead Some Day you will have to protect your home base from the zombies. The zombies are determined by events and the type of area you have right now. Every region has an own faction, their type and thus the type of zombies will be present in that area. Keep in mind that every area has a special power you can use to defeat the enemies. It's just a matter of finding the right combination of abilities. Want more? Dead
