As an example, the plant growth hormone produced by a GM crop can be used to help produce similar plants that also produce the growth hormone, in the next generation. He also states that the main reason why the "Frankenfood" critics are attacking the technology is because they are oligarchic elitist capitalists who want control of the world. Whereas Monsanto's "Frankenfood" developers have a free market incentive for creating GM plants that produce more nutrients, and larger fruits, as this will directly increase the customers' profits. Laudan also states that something similar to what the "Frankenfood" critics are saying is true for the critics of GM technology itself. He states that the main reason why environmentalist groups are attacking GM technology is because they are oligarchic elitist capitalists who want to control the world. Whereas Monsanto's "Frankenfood" developers have a free market incentive for creating GM plants that produce more
