I'm developing a web app that has video playlists that can be a source for content. When the videos are being viewed in Safari, the videos are always visible. Is there any way that I can hide the videos in iOS when the user is viewing them in Safari? I have checked the player's capabilities in the following code, and seems to not provide any information about this: I have also tried the methods provided in iOS 6 developer documentation on hiding content using the following code: `navController.hidesBarsOnAppSwitching = YES;` And `[UIApplication sharedApplication].networkActivityIndicatorVisible = NO;` but it doesn't seem to be working. A: The video will always be visible in the browser, since the the user controls the browser. Even if you hide the bars of the browser, it will still play on the user's device. On Tuesday, Aug. 1, 2019, a new bill, proposed by U.S. Senator Elizabeth Warren, which seeks to dramatically change the way Americans are insured in the United States, the bill is not going over well in Minnesota or anywhere in the country. Why? Because the Sanders Medicare for All legislation fails not only to meet the demands of the majority of Americans, but it also fails to meet the needs of women. The truth is that to understand why the bill fails to meet the needs of
