The game uses an “intelligent” AI-controlled virtual assistant to guide the player when making decisions on the pitch. The assistant will suggest the best option depending on the situation on the field – for example, it will tell a midfielder to move forward when he is closer to goal. The assistant constantly learns as you play, so it can provide even more intelligent feedback in the future. “The first FIFA game in over 15 years was a major change for the series,” said David Rutter, senior producer on the FIFA series. “We thought long and hard about the future of the soccer game and whether we should re-invent the wheel or stay true to our roots and listen to the feedback we received from millions of FIFA players. “We analysed our results to see if we could use what we had learned to improve the gameplay experience. It was clear that the game would be better if we used the feedback from real-life players on the pitch. So we sat down and created the technology that would enable us to create the most realistic FIFA game yet. “We experimented with many versions of motion-capture suits before deciding on the most effective design. We could fit almost every player we tested in the suits, so we designed the suits to work for all sizes and shapes, from tall, lanky players to shorter, more compact athletes. “After developing the suits we spent six months in the lab using them and a selection of top players to determine how all the elements of the game would work in motion. We then tested the player data against 11,000 real-life matches over a nine-month period. We also tested the AI against 67 real-life matches played against human players. This gave us the data we needed to ensure that the motion-capture suits, suits design and the AI work as we intended.” Fifa 22 Cracked Accounts will have a range of new story and off-the-pitch features, including: FIFA Ultimate Team – Play solo or co-operate and compete with your friends in different game modes. Ultimate Team introduces a new card system and new player and item packs that are released every three weeks. The “Ultimate Team Vault,” which rewards players for successfully completing challenges, will introduce an expanded collection of items and players for both MLS and Premier League teams. Players can also participate in Weekly Challenges to earn rewards. My
