Photoshop CS2 is a major upgrade over the previous version and includes many new features. Here are the top 10 Photoshop features. 1. Paint Bucket for Brightness and Contrast The Paint Bucket tool is a must-have feature for any Photoshop user. It allows you to paint out selected or clippered pixels based on their color or brightness and how much you want to brighten or darken the selected area. You can use it to brighten or darken selected areas of an image while still keeping the rest of the image unchanged. It can also be used for document repair by simply pressing the Shift key and picking pixels in an area of an image that's having some glitchiness to get it back to a solid color. 2. Refine Edge The Refine Edge tool is designed to improve the sharpness of the edges in an image or a vector image. You can select an object or area of the image, and the tool will make some adjustment to the image edge. This tool can be used to sharpen up or fix any fuzzy edges in an image. 3. Gradient Tool Using the Gradient tool enables you to blend the color gradient of one color with the color of another color. It is useful for creating a seamless blend of colors in an image. You can see what the tool looks like at the right side of the screen. It's like a paint bucket with more tools. You can paint out the black or fill in the white. How to Create a Painted Film Strip You can use the Gradient tool with the Paint Bucket tool for painting out the color. For example, let's say you want to create a painted film strip with a red, brown, and black gradient. In the end, the image would have a red, brown, and black gradient on it. Find the red color in your gradient, and click the paint bucket tool (Ctrl+P). Select the color you want to paint out or paint over, and start filling up the bucket with that color. Because you selected the paint bucket tool, there's also a circle at the bottom of the screen. This will indicate the amount of pixels you've painted over or removed with the Gradient tool. Once you paint over the colors with the paint bucket tool, you can use the Refine Edge tool to make any other edits

George Hoagland: Under a cap of $50M, Salvador Perez had a nice year For the first time since 2011, Salvador Perez isn't in the starting lineup anymore. But he's still wearing that Kansas City Royals uniform, so he's still playing in his first year with the team he grew up rooting for. You could understand why the man nicknamed "Fast Pitch" might be a little bitter, but he's almost been the best player on a team that's the opposite of fast. This week, the 26-year-old spent some time with Kansas City Star columnist George Vradenburg, going over how he's feeling about 2018. Vradenburg: Royals were supposed to be a hopeless mess, but their season has been surprisingly good. Were there any expectations of winning more than 45 games, maybe getting back into contention? Perez: "No, never. We were thinking no playoffs, just get to the postseason, win a series or get into the playoffs. We want to win the World Series. Never expected to win this many games." Vradenburg: You have 10 years in the big leagues. How would you rate Kansas City's farm system in comparison with other organizations? Perez: "We have been doing really good lately. We are building a great team. I think we have the most potential in the minor leagues. We have young guys that can develop in our organization. We can make it really good soon." Vradenburg: Royals have been a decent source of international free agents over the last five years. Perez: "We have a lot of Latin players in the organization. I think we have about 20 Latin players." Vradenburg: Since the team's success is based on more than just pitching, how do you feel about the Royals' position players and special teams this year? Perez: "We are really solid in all phases. We are having good offense. We have a lot of speed and a lot of power hitters. The pitchers are pitching really well, and the defense is playing really good." Vradenburg: KC traded Lorenzo Cain to the Giants. Your buddy Alex Gordon is the center of attention these days. How do you handle the attention? Perez: "When you have a family and you are good friends with guys, you are going to have that attention on
