Recommended specs: Intel i7-7700K, NVIDIA RTX2080 GPU Here is the new user profiles that take advantage of the new Intel i7-7700K. High-precision Dynamic Time Warping (DTW)

A function utilizing signal processing to accurately detect humanoid motion so it can be recognized. You can define your own parameters used for the calculation, such as the boundaries of the visible area of the body, or whether the face is completely visible or not.

If you have been recommended to make your character look really tough, you can use this to play a game without banging your head repeatedly against a wall. For example, when using stealth, or when aiming an attack at your opponent's weak spot. A more subtle, yet very useful function is Cross-Cutting Contour, which calculates the surface of a three-dimensional shape from a two-dimensional image.

You can adjust a camera view from a top view to a third-person view. It can also use a tracking object added to the map screen. You can also assign parameters to manipulate the position, scale, and angle of the camera for dynamic control.

In other words, if you are hunting a giant monster, you will be able to view and track the motion of the monster itself. This can also be used to make the game more immersive.

Perfect Track enables the player to see in-game footage even when the recorded data is too small for it to be seen on the map screen. It can be used for many actions, such as checking out a hiding position to ambush an unsuspecting opponent or being able to see an item that is about to be picked up.

WASHINGTON — President Obama is again pushing Congress to keep the interest rate on federally subsidized mortgages at 3.4 percent for a year as the economy struggles with a stagnant job market and sluggish income growth. But the president's proposal, which was scheduled for release on Thursday, is the subject of a new political fight as the Federal Housing Administration tries to keep Congress from indefinitely suspending the 3.4 percent rate for all Americans. Through his weekly radio address, the president on Wednesday acknowledged that housing prices are rising more rapidly than wages. “If I were a homeowner right now, and I had a mortgage payment of $1,000 every month, I’d be concerned about that gap between my home values and my income,” Mr. Obama said. He urged Congress to renew the housing stimulus program, now scheduled to expire in March, which is providing relief to struggling homeowners, to suspend that expiration for a year and to renew it for a year with a rate near 4 percent.

Extended-spectrum beta-lactamases have little effect on susceptibility testing of third-generation cephalosporins against anaerobic pathogens of the airways. The effect of extended-spectrum beta-lactamases (ESBL) on the susceptibility of isolates of anaerobes was investigated. Eighty-one isolates of anaerobic organisms were tested, isolated from patients in a French general hospital. Susceptibility of isolates of anaerobes to ceftioxin, ceftriaxone, cefotaxime and imipenem was determined by the broth microdilution method. Additionally, 52 isolates containing meropenem-resistant Gram-negative rods were analysed and the MICs for these isolates were also determined for ceftioxin. Inducible clindamycin resistance was identified in all isolates. All isolates showed susceptibility to most of the tested beta-lactams and imipenem. Nevertheless, discrepant results were obtained for 8.6% of the tested beta-lactams. Of the 85 anaerobes tested, 28 (32.9%) were resistant to ceftioxin, 1 (1.2%) was resistant
