Q: How can I run my python code that is being used in a RPi 3 to run on my RPi 3? I have this code working perfectly in my RPi 3 on my own power, using a Huawei USB/Serial Dongle. However, when I am using it on my RPi 3, it is saying that it is an undefined error. How can I make it work on my RPi 3? Any help is appreciated. A: If you are using the use a normal USB-Serial adapter (not a RPi specific one) and your RPi and your computer have the same hardware, the following method will work: On your computer, open a terminal and a file explorer (it will open a window). In your computer terminal, you will see the IP address of your RPi. (If you don't know how to access the terminal, type "about:terminal" in the address bar of the file explorer and it will open the terminal). In your file explorer, navigate to the location where the.py file is located on your RPi. Open the file in a text editor (like Notepad) and copy the code. In your computer terminal, change the adapter from the same one you used in your RPi to the adapter you use to communicate with your RPi. In other words, in step 5, you have to go through the steps to port your code to your computer, and then you have to change the adapter. Q: How to completely uninstall programs from my PC? Possible Duplicate: Windows 7 - Remove Programs, Program Files, and Shared Documents I have a pretty important PC now and I want to clean it up so I don't spend all my time doing the same thing 10 times over. I want to go through all the default programs that come with my Windows 7 machine and delete them. What's a good way to do this? Is there a program that will find them all and make them easy to delete or an easy way to browse through them all manually? A: Under Start -> All Programs, click on "Programs and Features". You should see a list of programs. Right click on a program and select "Uninstall". You may have to restart the computer. Sunday, March 18, 2017 Trump's Lawyers Depict Brokaw As Doctor Who
