I was watching an old VHS of my younger self playing a game. I found it interesting to write this game as it's something I haven't done for a long time. About 30 seconds to Jail: 30 seconds to Jail is a short indie video game, about a simple man who has a bag of drugs in his pocket and he has to get rid of them before he goes to jail. Walkthrough: 1. Walk forward 2. Punch forward to the stuffed animals 3. Walk down to the dog 4. Turn left and punch through the dog to the kitchen 5. Stay in the kitchen and feed the dog 6. Walk backwards, look at the clock and punch through the wall and get the last mystery box 7. Hit the Mystery Box 6 times to get 'One Time' 8. Hit the Mystery Box 1 time to get the 'One Time' 9. Pick up the phone and start the 'Poppy' 10. Walk forward and open the Poppy, getting through the wall to Bob Marley 11. Speak to the spirit of Bob Marley 12. Get back to the kitchen and feed the dog again 13. Make sure you don't forget to feed the dog before the time runs out. 14. Get back into the bedroom and hit the Mystery Box 2 times to get 'Two Times' 15. Hit the Mystery

Box 1 time to get the 'Two Times' 16. Pick up the phone and start the 'Poppy' 17. Walk forward and open the Poppy, getting through the wall to Bob Marley 18. Speak to the spirit of Bob Marley 19. 30 seconds to jail is a side-scrolling, non-violent, puzzle game. The player takes control of a prisoner who has 3 minutes left in his prison sentence, while he searches for a way to survive in his new environment. This game is a puzzle game where the player controls a prisoner with 3 minutes left of his prison sentence, through the entire prison complex and is trying to figure out how to survive the time until the end. The player must avoid the security guards, the dogs, the snitches, the keeper, the guard, the deputy and the prison systems rules. The player only has 3 minutes to find his way through a prison. The game allows the player to switch to a 3rd person view and also a 2nd person view. The game randomly generates levels that are difficult but fair. 15 minutes to jail is a jail management game with a 3D aspect. You control the prison, and you've a limited time to find a way to release the inmates. The game consists of three main activities: planning the prison, opening it and cleaning it. You will do both by visiting each cell and talking to the inmate. During your visit, you're placed in a fixed position and have a limited time to talk to that inmate. Talking to him will unlock new possibility to manipulate the cell in which you are placed or unlock a position on the map. The game brings a message of kindness and forgiveness. A message that is the basic philosophy of prison. 15 minutes to jail uses the Unity3D game engine. It was built using the Unity3D editor and created and developed in 3 months by a young dev team. It is the first game that uses the Unity3D editor, our aim is to provide the most intuitive way to develop games. YouTube Uncovers Gang Bangers As They Perform Assaults On Innocent Kids. You'll Be Stunned. How About This Video Instead Of Gun Control Legislation, How About We Jail

These Gang Bangers! Yes, welcome to America and I see a little spit running down your chin as you type. Ingrid, English Teacher, 11/14 I do not know if you will see this video. It is news footage and was posted long ago so we can expect it was made for obvious reasons. The fact that people haven't watched, not to mention the fact that 72% still don't, is astounding. There is a whole lot of money to be made in protecting America from knowing the truth and getting ahead. As we begin this post, let's take a look at our economic health. After the passing of Bruce Jenner, the old man with the 'facial steroids' is pretty much back to normal. For those that were wishing well on him when he made it in the NBA, that may not be the best outcome you ever could have wished for. In fact, investing money in fantasy basketball means that millions of aspiring basketball players left their college educations in exchange for getting picked last in the draft by an NBA team. It is estimated that - if you're going to invest about $5,000, then by the time you invest enough to play in the NBA for a few years, you will have lost up to half of that money. We all know that something is obviously wrong with our economic values. It is when people in power and those controlling the powers can do outrageous things, you have to wonder if you can even trust anything you hear or read about the economic system.
